Of course we continue to keep ahead of all competitors in the matter of LINENS. There is nothing so desirable as good, nice Linens, either to wear or to beautify the home.

In Table Damasks our range is from 50c to $1.50 for Pure Irish or German manufacture, with Napkins and Doilies to correspond. In Suits or Shirtwaist Linens our range is from 25c to $1.00; 4-4, 5-4, 6-4 and 10-4 widths being represented. The celebrated "WEBB" Linen being prominent among them.

Besides Towels in all grades, we carry perhaps the best, as it is certainly the cheapest, line of Fancy Articles in Linen—Doilies, Centrepieces, Scarfs, Pillow Shams, etc., in lace and drawn work.

East Franklin Street, for a month, beginning November 23d.

They will be the brilliant centres of a "Fete in Flowerland," to be given by ladies interested in the Sheltering Arms Free Hospital at the Colonial on a late November date, the exact day to be mentioned later. About 200 children are to take part in this "fete," and a number of fancy dances and special features, aided by a charming environment, render it specially attractive in prospect.

Mrs. Armistead Welford entertained the debutantes Thursday afternoon at tea, where the assembling of the buds in their pretty frocks and with their pretty faces rendered it the most attractive function of the week.

Leap Year Halloween Dance.
The younger set gave a leap year Halloween dance at Hermitage Hotel Friday evening. Decorations were quaint Jack-o'-lantern pumpkins and apples tied with yellow ribbon. These present were Misses Willy (Continued on Second Page)

Roanoke Social News

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

ROANOKE, VA., October 31.—There were a large number of Halloween entertainments given Saturday afternoon and night. Three were given in Sunday schools by various societies.

Little Miss Annie Lacey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lacey, entertained a number of friends with a masquerade ball Saturday evening.

Master Clay and Sexton Starkey entertained a number of their friends Saturday afternoon, and there were several card parties with Halloween decorations during the day and night.

William Watts Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, will give a ball and card party on the night of November 6th, at Mountain Park skating rink, for the benefit of their charity fund.

Mrs. Jefferson Kinney entertained a number of her friends Friday morning at bridge.

Mrs. Al. Hammond entertained at bridge Thursday morning, and Mrs. Newton Lewis Thursday afternoon.

The Roanoke German Club will give their first winter german at the Hotel Roanoke on November 25th.

Miss Almada McWhorter and Miss Alma McConahay, of Charleston, W. Va., are visiting Miss Mae McWhorter.

Mrs. T. E. Lewis, of Norfolk, is visiting Mrs. W. H. Lewis, on Franklin Road.

Miss Mary and Miss Susie Penn entertained at bridge Saturday morning, and Mrs. Gordon Simmons Thursday afternoon.

Buena Vista Social News.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

BUENA VISTA, VA., October 31.—Mr. Horace Lackey, of Lexington, was the guest of his uncle, Mr. W. H. Lackey, on Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret Witt and Mr. Banks Witt, of Lexington, were guests of Miss Vixella Cunningham on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rees, of "Fair View," near Buena Vista, were Mrs. J. H. Cunningham's guests on Sunday.

Mr. E. L. Embus left this week for New York and Boston.

Mrs. Mary Cunningham is the guest of her son, Mr. Edmund Randolph, Rev. Thornton S. Wilson, of Halifax, was the week-end guest of his daughter, Mrs. Cunningham.

Captain and Mrs. C. F. Jordan, of Keyser, W. Va., have left for home after spending several months with their daughter, Mrs. John Dickinson.

Mrs. John T. Dunlop and her mother, Mrs. William H. McCorkle, have left for Castle Hill, near Lexington, where they will make their future home.

Miss Louise Meriwether, who was thrown from a buggy last week, has recovered from the injuries she received.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Y. Mapp have returned from Richmond. The doctor attended the State Medical Society.

Miss Albert H. Williams, of Bon Air, who has been visiting in Bedford City, and now visiting her father at Montvale, will spend Thanksgiving with her sister, Mrs. A. Mack Hucker, and remain a month. Mrs. Hucker and Miss Katherine Kennon Rucker will accompany her home to spend Christmas.

Best couples of all-round fox dogs.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Boyd, Wheeling, W. Va., were guests during the week.

A large number of visitors are expected November 4th to attend the meet of the Virginia-Carolina Fox Hunters' Association, and a large number of entries have been made, and a week full of sport and many varied social pleasures are looked forward to.

Club of America has brought many guests here to the hotel during the past week, and the Northerners have truly found a sunny South and a cordial welcome, and expressed themselves entirely pleased with everything, and the hunting ground for the field trials of the hounds all that could be desired.

About twenty-five members of the club, Mr. W. G. Rockefeller, president, are here, including such prominent names as Mr. George B. Post, Jr., New York; Mr. Ernest Gill, Baltimore; Mr. James W. Appleton, New York; Mr. Charles R. Stevenson, New Jersey; Mr. T. Dudley Elgers, Baltimore; Mr. Arthur S. Burden, New York; Mr. Ramsey Turnbull, New Jersey; Mr. T. D. Bruns, New Orleans. There are here about 200 hounds.

Dr. Rawley Martin, Lynchburg, Va., and Dr. J. D. Turner, of Lanexa, Va., are making a beneficial stay here.

Mrs. T. Dudley Elgers and Mrs. Ernest Gill, Baltimore, and Mrs. Henry Dickson Bruns, New Orleans, were here for the hounds.

There was an informal but enjoyable dance on Tuesday evening, at which the following were present: Misses, Mrs. Martin, Lucile, Faxon, Leider, Irma, Jeffers, Pelzer, Maud, Wiley, Mrs. Ernest Gill, W. P. Whitaker, A. L. J. Boswell, J. Cooke, Boyd, Messrs. W. H. Dillard, W. H. Miller, E. Gill, C. A. Vaden, H. A. Cooper, Chetwood Smith and Boyd.

Mr. Polk Miller and his quartet gave one of his most enjoyable entertainments Saturday evening, and for two hours kept a large and appreciative audience convulsed with merriment, presenting a varied program, rich in every feature. Mr. Miller is over and always interesting, and the South claims him as peculiarly her own, and one of the best impersonators of the negro dialect in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. McVey, Grand Rapids, Mich., a thoroughly charming couple and a great addition to the social circle, will be here for a month.

Miss Nell Martin, a bright and vivacious girl from Lynchburg, is adding to the pleasure of the younger circle.

Dr. H. Boyd, of Wheeling, W. Va., came this week, bringing a beautiful cup, which he will present to the three

SOCIETY

November has come—not the November of "wailing winds and naked woods and meadows brown and sere"—but November, golden-girt and russet-robed, with all the bitter-sweet fragrance of the dying year garnered in her heart. The November woods in Virginia are delightful. It is the season when the wild grapes come to full perfection and the nuts show glossy and brown but the ash is decked with "autumnal berries that outshine spring's richest blossoms and yield a splendid show amid the leafy foliage." In the garden stand clusters of many-colored chrysanthemums—white, yellow, red and lavender, loose-petaled and pungently sweet, the characteristic blossoms of the month. Purplish crimson plumes of cocks' comb and belated autumn roses, brilliant and beautiful in color, flame in borders otherwise gay with the glow of scarlet sage, velvety dahlias and modest asters.

In the world of society there is a preliminary stir and preparation for the debutante teas that are to precede the opening of the german season in December. Among the young girls to be introduced this season are Miss Anne Keith Royall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Royall, already a leading belle in the younger smart set of Richmond; Miss Helen Adams, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. De Witt Adams, 618 West Grace Street, one of the brightest and most captivating of the group of buds. Miss Lora Crump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Crump, whose graduating year at Hollins was followed by a trip of some months abroad, from which she has recently returned, will have with her as autumn guests at the Chesterfield Miss Mary Stuart Cooke, of Roanoke, and Miss Lucy Wiltshire, of Baltimore, the trio making a notable addition to the season's "roses and garden of girls."

Miss Helen Tanner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tanner, of 1106 Floyd Avenue, a typical Southern girl of a dainty personality and much charm of manner; Miss Edith Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wirt E. Taylor, of 1064 West Franklin, who is considered one of the most attractive and popular of the girls with whom she is to make her debut; Miss Martha Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Martin, of 403 East Franklin Street, a lovely young girl, in whose honor several entertainments have already been projected, and who will be introduced by her aunt, Mrs. James Lee Sher-Wiltshire, one of the handsomest of this season's buds in Baltimore.

The debutantes will be seen daily at a colonial tea room that will be a most attractive feature of an arts and craft exhibit, to be held under the direction of Mrs. R. M. Blankenship and Miss Carrie Coleman, at No. 201

Mrs. Benjamin T. Crump, of 616 West Grace Street, who is prominent in the list of debutantes and identified with them in the most graceful and admirable way; Miss Grace Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Neal, of 5 West Main Street, a charming and vivacious brunette, already popularly known in her circle of the smart society set; Miss Virginia Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Watkins, of 315 North Harrison Street, quoted as being uncommonly attractive and bewitching by many who know her best; Miss Mary Traynor, daughter of Mrs. Robert Lee Traynor, of the Chesterfield, this city, conspicuous among the debutante group for her grace and charm; Miss Elsie Ingram, daughter of Judge John H. Ingram, eminently a figure among the buds of the season; Miss Eleanor Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lindsey, of 800 West Franklin Street, noticeably accomplished and lovely even among such accomplished and beautiful companions; Miss Ella Buek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Buek, and possessed of traditional traits which render her exceptionally attractive; Miss Virginia Whiteley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Whiteley, Jr., an admired and interesting member of the debutante circle; Miss Frances C. Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. D. Myers, Jr., who seems destined to be one of the most popular among the Richmond girls coming out this winter.

Other names not yet announced will be added later to render the list complete.

Debutante Entertainments.
Many entertainments are already being projected for the debutantes who are promised enough engagements to keep them very busy during the season.

One of the first young girls to make her bow to Richmond society will be Miss Lora Crump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Crump, of the Chesterfield, who have issued cards for a reception at Woman's Club on the afternoon of November 12th, from 4 to 7 o'clock. The reception will be followed by a collation from 9 to 12 in the evening. Miss Crump will have with her Miss Mary Stuart Cooke, daughter of Mr. Lucian Cooke, of Roanoke, Va., and probably Miss Lucy Wiltshire, one of the handsomest of this season's buds in Baltimore.

The debutantes will be seen daily at a colonial tea room that will be a most attractive feature of an arts and craft exhibit, to be held under the direction of Mrs. R. M. Blankenship and Miss Carrie Coleman, at No. 201

East Franklin Street, for a month, beginning November 23d.
